

I am OPPOSED to allowing the same company to own both television stations and newspapers in the same city (cross-ownership). The newspaper in my town already has shallow news analyses and focuses on non-news items. I don't watch TV since there is little to interest someone interested in serious issues and I am afraid that newspapers will seriously suffer if they are owned by the same people that own the TV stations. We desperately need a diversity of media options, not the increasing monotony we are getting now and which would increase if cross-ownership is allowed.
